PRES RELEASE

ANOTHER SUNNY DAY is the occasional solo project of Harvey Williams, originally from Cornwall and recently better known for his role as Field Mice guitarist. "New Year's Honours"/"I Don't Suppose I'll Get A Second Chance" is his sixth release on SARAH - his first, a flexidisc released in March 1987, got Single of the Week in both NME and Melody Maker, and the debut hard vinyl - "I'm In Love With A Girl Who Doesn't Know I Exist" - was SOTW in NME.

"New Year's Honours" is a love-lorn wallow in self-incrimination and regret dedicated to 52% of the world's population, while "I Don't Suppose I'll Get A Second Chance" is one of the few contemporary pop-songs to mention Penzance, a pleasant town overlooking Mount's Bay which owes its surprisingly mild climate to its east-facing aspect which helps shelter it from the open sea, and to the moderating effect of the North Atlantic Drift. In summer, it's ofte
